Profile

Ana is an attorney in Dunn Carney's Estate Planning and Environmental & Natural Resource Practice Groups.

Ana supports the firm's comprehensive estate planning practice, assisting clients with a broad range of needs, including preparation of wills, complex trusts, and legacy planning. She also works with nonprofit organizations to provide guidance on matters including navigation of tax-exemption applications, governance, and regulatory compliance.

In her environmental practice, Ana provides legal advice to clients on a variety of water and land use issues, with a particular focus on cleanup disputes, including investigation, remediation, and recovery of contaminated sites.

Before embarking on her legal career, Ana worked in environmental nonprofits in her home state of Hawaii. She brings her unique insights from the nonprofit world to her work with tax-exempt entities and organizations dealing with environmental issues.

In her time away from the law firm, Ana can be found swimming laps at her local pool or taking neighborhood strolls with her partner, their dog, and their leash-walking cat.
